

Your business assets stay yours. The reusable platform stays Tensology's.

The USD 1,495 price covers a working, branded shop, a site-specific operating licence, and a copy of the delivered codebase after full payment. Receiving the code does not transfer the platform's intellectual property.

The client owns

- Its name, logo, and brand files
- Product descriptions, prices, and images it supplies
- Customer, order, and business data
- Client-supplied documents and business copy
- Client-specific original material created and paid for under the quote
- Its payment, courier, domain, and third-party accounts

Tensology retains

- The reusable platform source code and architecture
- General modules, components, patterns, and deployment tooling
- CartonFit 3D logic and reusable operational workflows
- Platform improvements that are not uniquely client-owned material
- Know-how and the right to serve other businesses with the platform

The operating licence

After full payment, the client receives a perpetual, non-exclusive, site-specific licence and a copy of the code used for the delivered installation. The client may operate, host, maintain, and modify that copy for the licensed business. Tensology retains the underlying intellectual property and may reuse the codebase for other clients and products.

What the operating licence allows

Allowed

- Operate the delivered shop for the named business
- Use the shop with the client's own brand, catalogue, and data
- Host the delivered installation under an agreed technical handover
- Receive and retain a copy of the delivered codebase after full payment
- Maintain or modify that copy for the licensed business, including through a contractor bound by confidentiality
- Export client-owned business data in a reasonable standard format
- Continue operating the fully paid installation if the support SLA ends

Not included

- Reselling or sublicensing the platform
- Creating competing white-label copies for third parties
- Redistributing source code or reusable modules to third parties
- Removing third-party licence obligations
- Claiming ownership of Tensology's pre-existing or reusable IP

Third-party software and services

Open-source packages, payment gateways, courier services, hosting, domains, fonts, themes, and other third-party components remain subject to their own terms, fees, availability, and licence conditions. The quoted platform licence is once-off; Tensology charges no recurring core software licence. The client maintains its accounts and any optional premium third-party licences.

Source access and handover

After full payment, Tensology will provide a copy of the source code for the delivered installation in a reasonable handover format. The copy excludes live secrets, private credentials, unrelated repositories, internal operational tooling, and third-party material that Tensology may not lawfully redistribute. Receiving or modifying the copy does not transfer intellectual-property ownership or create resale rights.

Full assignment or buyout

An unrestricted assignment of Tensology's underlying platform intellectual property is not part of Commerce Launch. If a client requires exclusivity, resale rights, or full IP assignment, Tensology must price and agree that transaction separately in writing.

Plain-English position

You own your business, your brand, your products, and your data. You receive the right to run the shop you paid for, plus a copy of the delivered codebase after full payment. Tensology keeps the underlying intellectual property and the right to reuse the platform.